CL71 - Bachelor of Social Work

Inherent Requirements

There are Inherent Requirements (IRs) that you need to be aware of, and fulfil, to achieve the core learning outcomes of the units and course. IRs are the essential capabilities, knowledge, behaviours and skills that are needed to complete a unit or course.
Please note that in some instances there may be similarities between course, entry and inherent requirements.
If you experience difficulties meeting these requirements, reasonable adjustments may be made upon contacting accessibility@cqu.edu.au.
Adjustment must not compromise the academic integrity of the degree or course chosen at CQUniversity or the legal requirements of field education.

Ethical Behaviour

Examples are:

- Complying with academic and non-academic misconduct policies and procedures such as CQUniversity's Student Charter, Student Misconduct Policy and Student Behavioural Misconduct Procedures and Assessment Policy and Procedure (Higher Education Coursework).
- Complying with the professional code of ethics for social workers - AASW Code of Ethics 2020
- Being respectful to others and treating them with dignity including colleagues, fellow students, staff of CQU and other professionals whilst on practicums'
- Treating personal information obtained as private and confidential.
- Respecting an individual's/group's diversity by demonstrating sensitivity to religious, cultural and individual differences.
- Demonstrating an ability to reflect on ethical dilemmas and issues and taking responsibility for ensuring awareness of ethical behaviour.

Behavioural Stability

Examples are:

- Being reflective with personal behaviours appropriate for professional performance and being positive an receptive to processing constructive supervisor/lecturer feedback or criticism.
- Interacting with people from a wide range of backgrounds and cultures in a calm and composed manner in difficult to deal with situations.
- Successfully processing your own emotions and behaviour when dealing with potentially emotionally labile people in a wide range of professional environments.
- Maintaining behavioural stability through successfully distinguishing your own personal behaviours, experiences and emotions from the clients and situations in a professional setting.

Legal Compliance

Examples are:

- Complying with relevant child protection, vulnerable persons and safety legislation, mandatory reporting requirements and any other notifiable concern to your field placement supervisor.
- Complying with the requirements for student registration with the relevant professional body.
- Complying with the policies and practices of organisations in which you may be placed or find employment.
- Complying with university and workplace policy around the use of social media, online discussion forums, email and other electronic forms of communication.

Communication Skills (Verbal, Non-verbal, Written and Technology)
Examples are:

- Actively participating in discussion activities related to the course.
- Communicating effectively your professional knowledge and skills with accuracy, appropriateness and effectiveness in a wide variety of contexts.
- Using language that is appropriate to the context of the individual, group or workplace.
- Using appropriate facial expressions: eye contact, being mindful of personal space boundaries, and a range of body movements and gestures.
- Recognising and interpreting non-verbal cues of others and responding appropriately during activities related to the course, and in the professional environment.
- Competently and appropriately producing written assessment work in a logical, coherent manner, and with correct grammar, punctuation and correct referencing to the required academic standards.
- Expressing complex and detailed information and knowledge into a logical and easily understood written form for assessment or professional requirements.
- Constructing a legible report in a timely manner that meets professional standards and clearly communicates the intended message.
- Accurately documenting client records so they meet legal and professional requirements.
- Competently using a desktop operating system such as Microsoft Windows or Mac OS X.
- Accessing a computer and having sufficient computer skills to engage in on-line learning, reading and responding as required to emails, and completing relevant assessments for the course.
- Regularly accessing the Internet for research, and email for communication with peers and lecturers.

Cognitive Abilities (Knowledge and Cognitive Skills, Literacy and Numeracy)
Examples are:

- Conceptualising and using appropriate knowledge in response to academic assessment items.
- Completing academic learning activities and assessment tasks, and performing professional skills within reasonable set time-frames.
- Applying knowledge of policy and procedures in social work, health and human service settings.
- Applying theoretical knowledge and understanding a service user's history when undertaking assessment in professional practice.
- Paraphrasing, summarising and referencing in accordance with appropriate academic conventions associated with the referencing format used by the School of Nursing, Midwifery and Social Sciences.
- Competently reading, writing and accurately interpreting information to convey language effectively in professional practice.
- Producing accurate, concise and clear social work documentation which meets professional and/or legal requirements.

Sensory Abilities (Visual, Auditory, Tactile)
Examples are:

- Focussing on and recognising objects that are either near or far e.g. reading learning resources such as lecture and tutorial screens face-to-face on-campus or on-line; as well as reading examination papers and/or on-line computer quizzes.
- Observing non-verbal behaviour and other situations in a variety of professional settings.
- Reading facial expressing when dealing with service users and/or carers.
- Having sufficient aural function to consistently and accurately monitor, assess and mange a person's needs.
- Sufficiently hearing verbal communication from other students and lecturers during activities related to the course.
- Providing tactile and/or emotional support to children or adults in the event of circumstances where tactile communication is appropriate e.g. emotional upset, a person experiencing pain or grief.
- Using tactile (physical) communication in a respectful and appropriate manner to convey a positive message of emotional support or encouragement.

Relational Skills
Examples are:

- Relating to people from diverse backgrounds.
- Recognising the cross-cultural communication aspects in working with people from diverse backgrounds.
- Demonstrating respect and openness in our communication with each individual, family, group nd/or community.

Reflective Skills
Examples are:

- Reflecting on topics taught during the course of study, including on situations that my be difficult or sensitive yet still require reflective processing, judgement or action.
- Identifying when a practice issue is outside of your scope or expertise.
- Identifying when your practice may be negatively affected by personal experience and/or reactions.
- Reflecting on situations that may be difficult and sensitive.

Sustainable Performance
Examples are:

- Actively participating in activities related to the course and professional experience.
- Undertaking examinations and on-line quizzes with adequate, sustained levels of physical energy and concentration.
- Performing with the required physical and mental energy and endurance in performing the professional skills and practice during set time-frames.
- Attending residentials which involve long days of intense concentration and performing of skills

Interpersonal Engagement
Examples are:

- Actively listening to each person that seeks assistance.
- Dealing with conflict and tension in the communication process.
- Demonstrating empathy towards the other person.

Information and Communication Technology (ICT) Abilities
Examples are:

- Competently using Word, PowerPoint and other computer programs.
- Competently using the Internet, Facebook and Twitter.